Market Commentary

When there is blood in the streets...

The VN-Index plunged on Monday, closing down 3.9%, or 48.5 points, the largest decrease since April 15, to reach 1,188.07, the lowest level since April 23. 91 stocks hit their floor prices. The HNX also dropped 3.8%, or 8.8 points, to 222.7.

Today's losses were driven by news from the US that non-farm payrolls fell significantly short of expectations so that the risk of a US recession increased. (See our Macro Note). In response to this news, equity markets fell around the world. The Nikkei fell 12.4%, its largest percentage decline since October 1987. US treasury bonds rallied in a flight to safety. There was no Vietnam domestic news to prompt today's panic selling. In fact, the news increased the likelihood of two rate cuts this year from the US Fed, which would be very positive for Vietnamese equities. Today's sell-off therefore seems like an excellent buying opportunity. We may see continued selling tomorrow on weak sentiment, but the economic fundamentals of a weak US dollar leading to lower interest rates - in both the US and in Vietnam - should be supportive over the medium term.

No sectors gained today. Banks (-3.6%) led the sell-off, led by BID (-3.5%), TCB (-5.1%), CTG (-4.4%), VPB (-3.2%), VCB (-2.0%), and HDB (-6.1%). Financial Services (-5.1%), Industrial Goods & Services (-5.4%), Real Estate (-3.6%), Basic Resources (-4.3%), Construction & Materials (-3.6%) also witnessed considerable decreases.

Basic Resources fell -4.3%, including steel stocks HPG (-4.8%), HSG (-6.8%), and NKG (-7%) as a result of the lowest steel rebar price in eight years amid weak demand in China, and Vietnamese steel products being at risk of being included in an anti-dumping investigation by the European Union.

Foreign investors net sold VND750bn (USD29.8mn) today. The selling momentum focused on HPG (VND231bn, USD9.2mn), FPT (VND88bn, USD3.5mn), MWG (VND80bn, USD3.1mn) and STB (VND78n, USD3.0mn). Foreigners net bought VNM (VND192bn, USD7.6mn) and VCB (VND94bn, USD3.7mn).

Top laggards today included VCB (-2.0%), BID (-3.5%), GVR (-7%), TCB (-5.1%), HPG (-4.8%), and CTG (-4.4%), which dragged an aggregate 12.9 points off the VN-Index. Conversely, top gainers included HNA (+3.8%), SVC (+6.3%) and EIB (+0.3%).

5-Aug

Macro noteDisappointing US job market data stokes fears of hard landing scenario

Non-farm payrolls came in shockingly weak at 114,000, a significant miss vs the 185,000 consensus. This print, coupled with the unemployment rate ticking up to 4.3%, fueled recessionary fears and a broad-based market selloff. The DXY index plummeted to a four-month trough at 103.5, while the 10-year Treasury yield plunged to 3.79% from 4.20% a week prior.

Prior to the release of the weaker-than-expected July jobs report, market expectations leaned heavily toward a 25-bps interest rate cut, following Fed Chair Powell's comments at the July FOMC meeting. However, the unexpectedly weak employment data has boosted the likelihood of a more aggressive 50-bps reduction to 73.5% as of August 5.

The prospect of two rate cuts and a weakening greenback should be tailwinds for the Vietnamese stock market and currency. The SBV today reduced the OMO interest rate to 4.25% from 4.5% as FX pressures subsided. However, the looming fears of a hard landing scenario has cast a shadow over global stock markets the past few days, including Vietnam today. While Vietnam's economy has shown resilience with strong 2Q earnings of more than 15% seen in listed companies and robust 7M24 growth in manufacturing, exports, and FDI, our open economy, with the US being our largest trading partner, might reduce our export prospects due to weaker than anticipated US growth. Overall, market sentiment remains cautious as we await further economic indicators from both the US and Vietnam this week.
