Market Commentary

VN-Index rises for third day

The VN-Index opened higher on Wednesday, only to face selling pressure shortly after, leading the index to decline to its session low. However, in the afternoon, the market recovered and closed with a gain of 0.6%, or 7.1 points, to 1,276.85 for a third day of gains. The HNX Index also increased by 0.3% to 241.43.

BID (+3.2%) stood out as one of today's top performers. After a 20% decline from its peak in March to more attractive price levels, BID saw its second consecutive session of recovery. Our blended target price suggests a P/B ratio of 2.1x FY24 BVPS, surpassing the sector's historical five-year average (1.3x), reflecting our optimistic long-term outlook for BID following the completion of its capital raising plans.

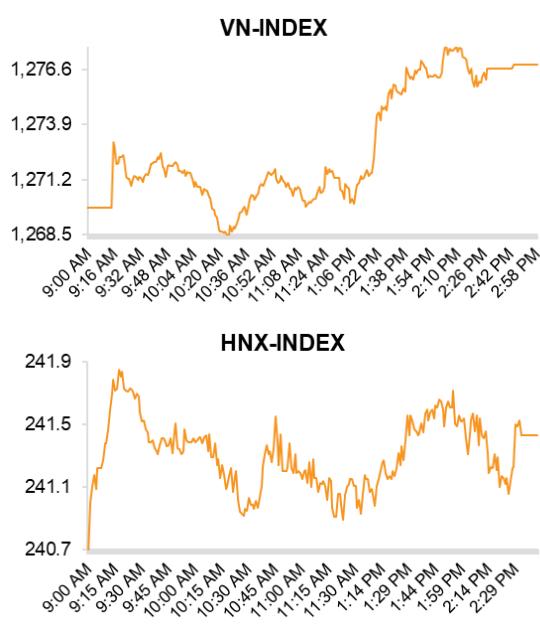

POW (+4.1%) rose today as investors anticipate robust 2Q24 earnings. Total electricity output of the company for the first six months reached 8,574 mn kWh, equivalent to 103% of the same period in 2023. In 2Q24, POW is expected to achieve nearly VND10tn (USD393mn) (+19% YoY, +60% QoQ) in revenue.

FPT (+2.3%) also jumped after three consecutive down days and was the second biggest contributor to today's gains. Additionally, the Technology sector (+2.1%) emerged as the best-performing sector, led by VNZ (+2.1%) and FPT.

Utilities (+1.2%) and Banks (+1.0%) also outperformed other sectors, led by POW, REE (+1.3%), VCB (+0.3%) and BID. On the other hand, Telecommunications (-0.7%), Retail (-0.6%) and Travel & Leisure (-0.5%) weighed on the market.

Foreign investors had their twentieth consecutive net selling session today with a net trading value of VND533bn (USD21mn), focusing on VRE (VND414bn, USD16mn), VHM (VND99bn, USD3.9mn) and MWG (VND87bn, USD3.4mn). On the contrary, BID (VND77bn, USD3.0mn), HDB (VND37bn, USD1.5mn) and VPB (VND34bn, USD1.3mn) were mainly bought.

Other top performers today included TCB (+2.6%), and LPB (+2.0%). Conversely, top laggards included HVN (-1.4%), VIC (-0.6%), VRE (-1.8%), MWG (-0.8%), and BVH (-1.3%).

Macro noteUS rate cuts on hold

Fed Chair Jerome Powell reiterated yesterday that inflation seemed to be resuming its downward momentum. However, as usual, he stayed hawkish by noting that FOMC members need more evidence before deciding to pivot to cutting rates.

May PCE - the Fed's preferred inflation gauge - was flat compared to the previous month and increased 2.6% YoY, meaning inflation is still higher than the Fed's 2% target but is on a disinflationary path after rising unexpectedly in the first few months of the year.

Following Chair Powell's comments, the DXY inched lower to hover around 105.6 (which is still quite high and puts pressure on the VND and other currencies), while the probability of a September cut edged up to 69% from 63% earlier. In our 2024 Navigating report (published at the beginning of the year), our positive scenario for the VN-Index to reach 1,430 this year required at least three rate cuts this year and for the DXY to fall below 100. However, the Fed's recent shift to just one cut for 2024 during its June meeting and the current level of the DXY above 102 align more closely with our negative scenario, which forecast the VN-Index to finish the year at 1,280, which is approximately where we closed today. We will review these scenarios in our upcoming 2H24 Navigating report later this month.
