Stocks pull back, led by banks, real estate

The VN-Index popped higher at the open on Friday and peaked in the first half hour of trading before sliding into negative territory into the afternoon, closing down 0.6% at 1,252.56 points. Total trading value increased 12.1% compared to Thursday to VND13.9tn (USD548mn). Meanwhile, the HNX-Index declined 0.3%, closing at 226.88.

The VN-Index fell 0.2% for the week, while total trading value continued its downward trend, decreasing by 10.3% compared to last week with a daily average of VND13.5tn (USD531mn). Positive sentiment regarding the decisive results of the US presidential election was not enough to offset the impact of a soaring US dollar as the DXY broke through 105 on Thursday and closed the week at 104.5.

Sectors that fell today included Real Estate (-1.4%), Banks (-0.9%), Chemicals (-0.8%), Retail (-0.6%), and Food & Beverage (-0.6%). In contrast, Travel & Leisure (+3.0%), Industrial Goods & Services (+2.0%), Insurance (+1.4%), Technology (+0.6%), and Utilities (+0.6%) rose.

Telecommunications (+5.3%) was the top performing sector today, led by Viettel stocks, including VTP (+6.5%), CTR (+2.4%), VGI (+7.4%), and VTK (+13.4%), which maintaining their upward momentum due to the approval of the investment policy of the Viettel Logistics Park Project on November 5.

HVN (+6.7%) reached its intraday ceiling price but failed to maintain it through the ATC session. HVN's upward momentum followed Vietnam Airlines' announcement of improved business results. HVN's revenue for 9M24 rose by 17.4% YoY to VND79.9tn (USD3.2bn).

Foreign investors net sold today VND1.2tn (USD47.5mn), focusing on VHM with VND166.5bn (USD6.6mn), MSN with VND143bn (USD5.6mn), and MWG with VND112bn (USD4.4mn). In contrast, buying momentum was on CMG with VND193bn (USD7.6mn), HPG with VND127bn (USD5.0mn), and another HPG transaction with VND85bn (USD3.4mn).

Top performers today included HVN (+6.7%), FPT (+0.5%), BVH (2.9%), and VTP (+6.5%). Top laggards included VHM (-3.4%), VCB (-1.1%), CTG (-1.7%), and VIC (-1.6%).

8-Nov

Macro note

Fed eases rates by 25bps, future rate cut path remains uncertain as political risks intensify

The Fed yesterday delivered a widely expected 25-bp rate cut, bringing the target range down to 4.50%-4.75%. This decision follows September's more aggressive 50-bp reduction. Following the rate cut, both the DXY and US 10Y Treasury yield went modestly downward to 104.5 and 4.355%, respectively.

The FOMC's post-meeting statement highlights a nuanced adjustment in its assessment of the US economic landscape. To be specific, the Committee's revised stance, shifting from "greater confidence" to a more "balanced risk assessment", reflects a more cautious approach to navigating the right balance between price stability and full employment mandates.

As stated in yesterday's notes, market participants had anticipated that Trump's upcoming policy implementations could exert upward pressure on inflation, prompting the Fed to adopt a more vigilant approach to monetary policy. Nonetheless, Fed Chair Powell struck a usual cautious and deliberate tone during yesterday's meeting. The official emphasized the autonomy of monetary policy, asserting that the new administration will not directly influence near-term monetary policy decisions. Furthermore, Powell has declared his intention to retain his current position regardless of any potential requests for resignation from Trump.

Regarding the upcoming rate cut path, market expectations point to a 25-bp reduction in December, followed by a potential pause in January next year. However, the ultimate trajectory of monetary policy and the final destination of the Fed funds rate remain subject to considerable debate, especially as officials and investors assess the upcoming Trump 2.0 era.

Analyst note

DPM's Analyst Meeting Note

We attended DPM's analyst meeting. Here are our observations:

1. 9M24 business results

Production and consumption volume

- Production volume in 3Q24: Urea and NPK increased by 9%/8% YoY and reached 79%/75% of annual plan, respectively.
- Consumption volume in 3Q24: Urea decreased 3% YoY and reached 81% of the annual plan, NPK increased 14% YoY and reached 89% of the annual plan.

In general, the production and consumption volume of the two main products urea and NPK in 3Q24 and 9M24 both exceeded the annual plan.

2. Average selling price in 9M24

- Average urea selling price in 9M24 increased 4% YoY to VND9,600/kg (USD0.3)
- Average NPK selling price in 9M24 decreased 7% YoY to VND12,000/kg (USD0.4)

3. Input gas price

- The gas price in 3Q24 decreased by 3.5% YoY to USD10.93/mmbtu, however, the gas price in 9M24 increased by 4.3% YoY to USD10.91/mmbtu (up 12% compared to the annual plan). The tariff in 3Q24 also increased by 5.1% YoY to USD4.68/mmbtu, however, the tariff in 9M24 decreased by 1.9% YoY. Gas prices increased in 9M24 mainly due to the escalating USD/VND FX rate, putting pressure on gas prices.

4. Gross profit margin

- GM improved 1.6% pts YoY mainly due to a higher urea selling price offsetting a higher input gas price.

5. Forecast for full-year 2024 consumption volume

- Urea: 871 tons (-1% YoY)
- NPK: 137 tons (sideways YoY)

6. Periodic general maintenance plan in 2025

- Normally, DPM performs general maintenance every two years for four weeks. However, the periodic maintenance time in 2025 may be extended because in 2025 DPM plans to upgrade an important item (catalyst basket) after 20 years of operations. The overall maintenance is expected to take place in the low season in 3Q25. Due to the longer expected maintenance downtime, production volume may be lower than in previous years when general maintenance was also performed.

7. Forecast of urea price movements

Urea prices may increase again from December mainly due to:

- Supply: As China continues to stay out of the market, conflict may escalate in the Middle East and Europe enters winter, supply continues to be constrained.
- Demand side: India returns with new tenders, and demand gradually increases in key markets such as Brazil, EU and Africa.

8. Policy assessment of China's urea export restrictions to DPM, and China's urea export forecast in 2025

- The company forecasts that China could return to the urea export market as early as early 2025, however, export volume will not be too large. Therefore, urea prices are unlikely to fall sharply.

- Before China issued a ban on urea exports, DPM's urea export output had been maintained at over 100,000 tons/year. The company said that Chinese export policies are difficult to forecast, and many regional customers in recent years have gradually sought new, more stable sources of supply, including DPM's urea. For DPM, its current international customers are quite stable, unlikely to be strongly affected when China returns to the urea export market.
