Stocks stall above 1,300; banks fall on lower deposit rates

The VN-Index opened higher on Wednesday, but in a similar fashion to yesterday, gradually lost momentum and closed flat at 1,302.96. Total trading value dropped 14% DoD to VND16.7tn (USD652.8mn). The HNX-Index posted a slight gain of 0.1% to 238.6.

Telecommunications (+3.9%), Technology (+1.8%), Media (+0.9%) and Basic Resources (+1.0%) were the best-performing sectors, while Utilities (-1.0%), Oil & Gas (-0.6%) and Banks (-0.5%) fell.

After consecutive declines, FPT (+2.0%) led the Telecommunications/Technology rally today. Additionally, Hoa Sen Group announced it would repurchase 50-100 million shares, boosting steel stocks.

Bank stocks saw selling pressure today, including STB (-1.8%), SSB (-1.5%), CTG (-1.2%), MBB (-0.9%), VIB (-0.7%) and HDB (-0.6%), following pressure from the State Bank of Vietnam (SBV) for banks to slash deposit interest rates, resulting in swift action by several banks to reduce their deposit rates by as much as 0.6%-0.7%. The SBV also announced that it would strictly manage banks engaging in interest rate competition in accordance with legal regulations. This move by the SBV aims to stabilize deposit interest rates and reduce lending rates in order to achieve the Government's goal of 8% GDP growth in 2025. This action has shaken previous market expectations that commercial banks could expand their Net Interest Margin (NIM) in 2025.

Foreign investors continued to net sell today, with a net selling value of VND295bn (USD11.6mn). Selling was focused on banks, such as STB (VND199.2bn, USD7.8mn), CTG (VND147.1bn, USD5.7mn) and SHB (VND53.3bn, USD2.1mn). Meanwhile, VNM was net bought (VND100.5bn, USD3.9mn) and MWG saw continued buying for a third day (VND256.5bn, USD10.0mn) after a streak of 15 net selling days.

Today's top laggards included CTG (-1.2%), VCB (-0.3%), and STB (-1.8%). Top gainers included FPT (+2.0%), GVR (+1.6%), and HPG (+0.9%).

Macro Note

US Treasury yields tumble amid economic concerns

The US 10-year Treasury yield sank to its lowest level since December 2024 as a consequence of escalating concerns surrounding a potential deceleration in US economic growth. This decline has precipitated a surge in demand for fixed-income instruments, resulting in a corresponding appreciation in bond prices.

Conference Board consumer confidence Index (CCI) registered a sharp contraction yesterday, falling to 98.3 in February, undershooting consensus estimates of 102.7 and January's reported 105.3. This represents its lowest level since June 2024 and the sharpest monthly decline since August 2021. The concerning CCI data followed a series of recent economic indicators that have fallen short of expectations. February's University of Michigan consumer sentiment index also experienced a larger-than-anticipated decline, while January's existing home sales figures also demonstrated a downward trend. Furthermore, the February S&P Global PMI failed to meet projected levels due to weakening services PMI.

Adding to the complexity, the US Government is pursuing a streamlining initiative, involving the dismissal of ~30,000 public servants (JPMorgan forecast). This effort aims to reduce Government spending by USD2tn and eliminate what are described as wasteful expenditures. This fiscal tightening, alongside economic uncertainty, have fueled increased demand for US Treasury bonds as a safe-haven asset.
